H&R Block Reports Preliminary Results for 2006 Tax Season

May 10, 2006 8:31 AM ET

KANSAS CITY, Mo.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--May 10, 2006--H&R Block Inc. (NYSE:HRB) today reported solid gains in tax preparation and related fees for the 2006 tax season along with an increase in total clients served over last year.

Tax preparation and related fees for H&R Block's U.S. retail operations increased 4.5 percent to $2.5 billion. The average fee per client served rose 6.6 percent to $160. Total clients served by the company's retail operations and digital (online/software) tax business grew 1.4 percent to 19 million.

"The 19 percent increase in digital tax clients this year demonstrates both the momentum we're building in this business along with the importance of offering a full range of ways for clients to access our services," said Mark A. Ernst, chairman and chief executive officer.

In its retail tax operations, H&R Block closed the season serving more clients in March and April 2006 than in the same months of last year. "We benefited from stepped-up marketing programs and better end-to-end client service," Ernst said, following early 2006 technical problems that had cost several hundred thousand clients versus prior year. For the 2006 tax season overall, total clients served in U.S. retail offices was off 2 percent from prior year.

The company notes that it expects full-year earnings per share to come in slightly below the $1.65 low end of its previously communicated range, in part due to weaker than expected results from mortgage services.

"The actions we've taken during fiscal 2006 to strengthen our competitive position in our various businesses is enhancing our capacity to serve our many clients," Ernst said. The earnings guidance does not include the effect of previously announced charges to resolve refund anticipation loan litigation and for related fees, or charges for consolidation of a number of mortgage operations to reduce ongoing operating cost structures.

Fourth quarter and full-year 2006 financial results are scheduled to be reported June 7, along with further analysis of the 2006 tax season.
