If You're in a Crunch, You've Got Free Online E-Filing and Tax Professional Assistance Through April 17 Deadline

KANSAS CITY, Mo.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--April 12, 2007--You've collected your tax documents, made the decision to prepare your return yourself, but are wondering if "crunch time" leaves you with enough time to file. With only days remaining before the IRS tax deadline, TaxCut Online can meet your needs.

"There's less than a week to go, but TaxCut Online provides a secure, easy-to-use, and cost-effective option to filing your taxes, or even filing for an extension," said Derek Swords, director of TaxCut products at H&R Block Digital Tax Services (NYSE: HRB). "The IRS reported last week the number of returns e-filed from home computers has increased this year, and with products like TaxCut Online, it's no wonder."

TaxCut Online offers multiple versions, to address simple or more complex returns, as well as state returns. If you have a question while preparing your return, TaxCut Premium Online includes a free tax consultation with an H&R Block tax professional. With free e-filing, your tax return can be transmitted to the IRS up until midnight, April 17, this year's filing deadline. Need to file an extension? TaxCut Online allows you to e-file a federal extension for $19.95, and avoid the late night drive to the post office. It's that easy.

A recent survey conducted by H&R Block found fifty-one percent (51%) of respondents used online or software programs to save time, followed by thirty percent (30%) who appreciate the cost savings. That's because taxes for the do-it-yourself type never was easier, especially during "crunch time."
