News Release

For Immediate Release: March 26, 2020

H&R Block provides an update on the impact from the novel coronavirus (COVID-19)

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - H&R Block, Inc. (NYSE: HRB) today provided the following business update amidst the rapidly evolving novel coronavirus (COVID-19) situation.

“The coronavirus pandemic is changing every aspect of our lives,” said Jeff Jones, H&R Block’s president and chief executive officer. “We have implemented new benefits to help our large seasonal workforce and have made significant changes in how we operate which will continue to evolve during this volatile time.”

Drop Off and Remote Expertise as Primary Means to Help Clients

With the economic impact of the pandemic being felt across America, H&R Block remains committed to helping people gain access to their refunds while shifting how we operate to help promote the safety and wellbeing of associates and clients. While we continue to provide a reduced number of in-person appointments, we are shifting to be primarily drop off, or drop off only, across our locations nationwide. We are also encouraging clients to use our virtual Tax Pro Go<sup>SM</sup> service and DIY offerings, including live help through Online Assist<sup>SM</sup>.

As a professional service provider with a highly seasonal workforce, the wellbeing of our associates is of great importance. We have implemented benefits to support tax professionals and hourly workers if they are unable to work or are impacted by coronavirus. Additionally, we have increased office cleanings, taken additional steps to help ensure cleaning supplies are available, regularly reminded associates of the need to follow CDC guidelines and practice social distancing, prohibited air travel, implemented work-from-home where feasible, and established resource pages on our associate portal which are updated regularly.

Business Performance Update

In the early part of the tax season, we were seeing positive impacts from our strategic objectives to digitally enable every aspect of our business. Due to the coronavirus pandemic, however, the majority of the country is under stay-at-home orders, and various restrictions are in place in multiple municipalities, counties, and states that are limiting our ability to operate. In addition, the federal filing deadline has been extended to July 15 and certain states have extended, or are considering extending, their respective filing deadlines. With approximately one-third of our typical tax season volume remaining in Assisted and DIY, it is difficult to predict how tax filer behavior may change, and correspondingly, what the impact may be on the company’s performance. Given the delayed tax season, we are not planning to provide a tax season volume update until our fiscal 2020 earnings release in June. In addition, small business owners are being impacted by the pandemic which will likely result in lower volume through Wave’s payments platform.

Balance Sheet and Liquidity Update

In order to strengthen our liquidity and ensure maximum flexibility, today we drew the full amount of our $2.0 billion revolving credit facility, which as of March 25, 2020 was undrawn. Combined with the cash we have accumulated to-date, we now have a cash position in excess of $2.6 billion<sup>1</sup>. We are also evaluating all discreti onary spending, including capital expenditures, and have not repurchased any shares during our fiscal fourth quarter.

“Maintaining adequate liquidity has always been a top financial priority, which is why we have the credit facility in place, and regularly draw on the line to fund operations outside of the tax season,” said Jones. “We believe the steps we are taking will allow us to adequately cover anticipated cash requirements through the start of the fiscal 2021 tax season.”
